The Exclusive World of Sverre Wilhelm Malling

by Hanne Storm Ofteland

art historian and critic

In Sverre Wilhelm Malling's art there are many references to Western modern culture. Malling is inspired by all things beautiful in his eyes, i.e. old record covers, cartoons, sexy kittens in B-movies from the 1960s, posters... You name it, it's there.

Malling's point of departure is the narrative painting, based in a classical figurative style. The motives are derived from different subcultures, B-culture, pure kitsch, but also highbrow culture. He interweaves all his interests into his works, and does not exclude anything – as long as it is visually intriguing to him. Thus Malling hopes to free himself from the different ideologies.

No rules are to inhibit his works. Malling's art is a passionate art, rather than an intellectual art, according to himself. In the group show — in Skur 55, Bjørvika in July, Malling presented an all-surrond project, creating a whole room for his art – and art for his room. Canvas paintings and monochrome stencil graffiti pieces printed on the wall, featuring himself and his girlfriend Marianne. Chairs and a table – both fifties' style, liquor, and text fragments borrowed from lp covers. A tribute to his own subculture – and a personal challenge as the privat person and the art fuse into this thrilling experiment.
